<https://www.cene-stupar.si/sl/lifelongwood>

Career center for youth Karierni Plac in the Western Slovenian region empowers school-age youth (children and adolescents aged 6 to 19), early school leavers (young people aged 15 to 29 who are not in employment, education, or training) and parents and school counselors to plan their careers. Through various activities, they enable them to discover their interests and skills to strengthen their chances of entering the labour market.

The Interreg project LifeLongWood. Project promotes wood as a sustainable raw material and highlights future career opportunities in the wood sector through cross-border cooperation. It introduces young people aged 12–14 to woodworking professions using innovative career guidance tools. By connecting education with industry, the project strengthens skills development and interest in wood-related careers.

Me, the inovator of future occupations – emerge with us in the future of work.
